To Whom it May Concern;

For two decades YYES has partnered with a variety of vendors and subcontractors to accomplish thousands of client projects. Rarely has a partner demonstrated the effectiveness, responsiveness, and efficiency of the team at Milagro Interactive.

As a design firm, our goal is to always deliver projects that are elegant, deceptively simple, and appropriately delightful to their sector. With web projects, those goals apply to both the frontend and backend.

Partnering with Milagro Interactive delivered on these goals consistently.

The team adapted seamlessly to our workflow, brought solutions to the technical challenges, and took our design work to completion -- often filling in the gaps for elements we hadn't considered, for example a hover action or load animation. They truly became an extension of our firm, thinking and working as we do.

With technical functionality, we never needed to solve the problem. Shown an example of what we wanted, Milagro Interactive was able to rapidly develop and apply a solution that fit the project. Additionally, with some guidance they handled the U.S. WCAG web accessibility requirements for ADA users to perfection.

Most critically, they responded to changes and additions quickly. Part of this was the benefit of timezones: notes we sent at the end of our day were often accomplished by the time we were back in office the next morning.

Also notable is that this was our firm's first experience working with an overseas development team, so we admittedly had some initial trepidation. It was quickly dispensed with as Milagro Interactive delivered.

It's my pleasure to recommend Milagro Interactive as a partner, and I'll be glad to discuss in detail any specifics of our working engagement.

Kind regards,
